Mako), before joining Paris the same year where he settled there. His work was noticed by prominent collectors, such as Ambroise Vollard and Ivan Chtchoukine. In 1932, he made a personal exhibition at the "Jeune Europe" gallery in Paris, at the same time he participated in the exhibition of Ukrainian and French artists, organized by the ANUM. In 1932-1939, he participated in 12 exhibitions (including 8 personal) in the galleries of Marseilles, London and Warsaw. From 1943, the painter worked with the Durand-Ruel gallery, which organized exhibitions for him in Paris and New York. A major retrospective exhibition at the Durand-Ruel gallery (1972) became an artistic event in Paris.
