The decoration of this room takes up traditional floral motifs which appear in the carpets of the 17th century and in mosques, on ancient ceramics. One easily recognizes in the interlacing of roses, daisies, as well as lotus flowers, present on the field and on the borders, often tied on these carpets. The border and its counter-borders are very sophisticated, as the arrangement of interlacing and flowers is of great finesse.

The design of the central medallion, fitted and polylobed, specific to these carpets, has elegant extensions in pendants in the shape of halberds. The patterns of the corners, spandrels, based on ivory interlacing and stylized flowers on a pale blue background, testify to great research.

The colors are pleasant and have remained very fresh, Prussian blue, pale blue, ochre, burgundy, old pink, brown, green and deep red are shades that are rarely encountered.

We have great difficulty in imagining the infinite patience that was needed and that is needed to create such a beautiful piece.

Density of approximately 640,000 knots per M2 for a thickness of just under 5 millimetres.

The edges are in good condition, as well as the velvet.

This type of carpet proves to us the precise and acute artistic sense of the craftsmen of Isfahan.

Isfahan, is the great city of art in Iran, even today.

Under the reign of Shah Abbas, the fame of this city in the artistic sector was of the greatest importance.

This city has produced some very great artists, and some of the finest rugs in the world.

This rug has been professionally and environmentally cleaned.

Models with many similarities to ours are present at the Golestan Palace Museum, at the Carpet Museum in Tehran, Iran (photo of these pieces on request for information) and in other museums and collections around the world .
