Description

Trinity in sculpted and polychromed wood, in the round, the back partially hollowed out. It is represented here as a "Throne of Grace". In this original formula, probably born in France in the 12th century, God the Father holds his Son before him. From the 13th century, the body of the Son rests on the knees of the Father in a disposition inspired by the Pietàs. It responds to the mystical desire to express more forcefully the pain of the Father. Bavaria, or Swabia, spätgotik, around 1550. A few times in the original polychromy, but very reasonable. Very nice effect.
