Description

Charming biscuit porcelain sculpture depicting a young girl seated in her bed, her hands joined in prayer in an attitude of sweetness and serenity. This intimate scene, full of natural charm and tenderness, evokes a touching moment of quiet devotion.The composition rests on an elegant Louis XVI style gilt-bronze mount, finely chased and beautifully enhancing the purity and delicacy of the biscuit porcelain.This Austrian Art Nouveau work, dating from circa 1900, is distinguished by the refinement of its modelling, the quality of its details, and the delicate expression of the child's face. It is attributed to a workshop using the "Ges. Geschützt" mark, a registered protection mark frequently found on Austrian productions of this period.A decorative object of excellent quality, this delightful
