Description

Oil on canvas painting signed lower right "A. Van Pelt" and titled in pen on the back of the painting "Painting signed A Van Pelt representing Raphael coming to paint the portrait of the daughter of a Doge - Doge chief of the ancient Republics of Genoa and Venice". Here is represented the painter Raphaël described as "divine". He is considered the one who knew how to resurrect the modesty and purity of Greek art. * Abraham Van Der Pelt - Dutch painter of the 19th century born in 1815 and died in 1895 having produced some recognized works. These are very beautiful achievements and there are few that value his works. This painting is in good condition.
