Description

Madonna and Child in polychrome lead on wooden plasue, 17th century. The subject is represented in low relief and made of lead applied to a panel of pine wood, probably southern work. Remains of polychromy, in particular red for the clothes and gold for the halos. The surround is treated like a strong studded strip and also made of lead. Curved upper part. An interesting object despite its wear, which dates, I remind you, from the 17th century. Delivery: EUR15 for metropolitan France.
