Description

Important pair of molded and carved oak armchairs upholstered with their upholstery at the point of origin.

Large, slightly upturned backrest fully upholstered with a high basket-handle crossbar.

The armrests with cuffs are finished with scrolls resting on curved consoles set back.

The crosspieces of the seat, scalloped and carved with shells and foliage, are joined by four curved legs, decorated at an angle with a finial in the upper part and finished with scrolls at the base.

The armchairs have a very beautiful patina, have never been disassembled and have their original upholstery with the period assembly by the upholsterer.

Regency period.

The armchairs are in their juice.
