under the guidance of two well-known artists: Robert Dessales-Quentin and Julien Saraben. Ribeyrol initially worked in Grenoble, where he participated in many local fairs in the entourage of the Société des Beaux-Arts in the city. His passion for drawing and painting oblige him to practice almost daily within this circle to develop his art with more rigor. He won prizes in Grenoble and Lyon, a city he joined in 1968 and where he did not fail to join the Société des Beaux-Arts... During all these years of expatriation, Jean-Daniel Ribeyrol constantly created, mostly landscapes of neighboring Provence, but of course the foothills of the Alps or Auvergne. A few still lifes punctuate the partitioned landscapes of colors that he likes to exhibit. In 1974, the painter is retired and can devote himself full time to his passion in front of the landscapes of Périgord. Shortly after, he created within the Société des Beaux-Arts du Périgord, "l'Atelier" which continues today, being a place of meeting and weekly practice. From 1986 to 1990 he chaired the Company which he seriously expanded. In 1988, a major exhibition of his work was organized in Périgueux, and another in 2015 in Razac sur l'Isle.

More accustomed to landscapes, Ribeyrol nevertheless dealt with the "minor" style of still life. In its purest style with cubist and luminist accents, these warm apples are accompanied by a jug and a pouring saucepan.
