Description

Travel writing desk in walnut veneer consisting of a top with mother-of-pearl inlays at the corners, a central plate and a net around its edge punctuated with mother-of-pearl pellets. These decorations are openwork and formed of decorative arabesques. On the front, this box has a circular mother-of-pearl entrance, accompanied by a key and an original hook lock in perfect working order. Once opened we discover a slightly inclined side decorated with red leather with cold stamps, gold vignette and patterns at the corners. In the upper part we find three compartments and a removable pencil holder revealing a cavity. A small inkwell completes this space. The joint is made of brass hinges. Note also a small brass latch, closing one of the two covers possessed by this writing desk. This is
