Description
-------------

Magnificent inlaid tea table in Louis XV style. The black painted wooden structure is decorated with bronze bands and decorations, which contrast with the shiny black of the furniture. Each tray is inlaid in mahogany veneer and rosewood, with floral motifs in their centers. The work is of very high quality, it is in very good general condition, with traces of life and a few rare losses on the veneer. Note, the lower tray is very slightly curved, which can be seen against the light, but this in no way spoils its beauty and does not hinder its use. This table will give a classic touch to your decor, it would be perfect for serving cheeses or desserts, or for storing a collection of trinkets. It can also serve as a pedestal table to place a beautiful bouquet or a beautiful lamp. Circa 1890. Dimensions: - Height: 82 cm - Length
