Description

This beautiful rooster, proudly standing, with its beak open, to start its song, is made of earthenware. The rooster, announcer of the day and the night with his crowing, has strong character traits, symbol of France and the French, he is known to be combative, proud, conquering and aggressive, always noisy and turbulent. The law of April 9, 1791 under the Revolution qualifies it as a symbol of vigilance. This one standing on its ears of corn in beautiful shimmering colors bears a number and the Caldas Portugal brand on the reverse. 20th century period. Height 35 cm.
