Description

Modular table with tulip base - 1970s period. The base is in cast iron from the CHENESSEAU foundry in Orléans, a company created in 1933. The base of this table is covered in white rilsan. The top is round in shape in wood, incorporating an extension of the same wood. The jack mechanism system, allowing the height of the table to be adjusted, works perfectly. This very unusual feature allows you to use it in an instant as a dining table in a dining room or as a coffee table in a living room. This table with its designer line, with its particularities, will integrate with elegance and comfort into any interior with a lot of charm.
