Description

Christian de Cambiaire is a precursor of Geometric abstraction. What is done today by great contemporary artists, he did 50 years ago. He worked a lot in the Toulouse region but it's a shame for him that he didn't go to Paris because he would certainly have a different rating than today. In his work everything is fair, square and we imagine a constant search for the construction of these paintings. Collectors are starting to take an interest in his work because it is exactly what it is today. It's just deserved recognition.
