Description

Beautiful set of solid walnut chairs, made at the Nancy school, characterized by a molded and sculpted base. Each of the legs is slightly arched outwards, bringing the finesse and delicacy of Art Nouveau. The seat is upholstered in brown studded imitation leather. These nails have the particularity of having a head in the shape of delicately sculpted flowers. These unique seats stand out with their openwork backrest shaped like a butterfly's wings. Equipped with a handle at the top, these molded backrests are also upholstered in imitation leather studded with flowers. These Art Nouveau chairs will seduce you with their curved lines and their originality.  Period: 1900 Excellent condition after restoration in our workshop. Waxed finish.
