Description

Pair of tall Solomononic columns in carved wood covered with stucco. Topped with rotating Corinthian capitals decorated with triple rows of acanthus leaves and gilded leaf scrolls, the shafts, helical in shape with furrows, widen slightly in the lower part. The base of these columns is decorated with a rotating decoration, vine sep and an acanthus wreath, also painted with gold leaf.

The name "Solomonica" refers to the columns from the Temple of Solomon brought back by the Emperor Constantine to adorn the tomb of the Apostle Saint Peter in Rome. This pair of tall columns will bring a baroque dimension to your decoration.  Period: 18th century Good condition, some missing stucco and traces of wear.
