Description
-------------

Large Ottoman basin, in chiseled brass with convex base and slightly inclined wall, hemmed rim, presenting a multitude of decorations chiseled by hand with a chisel, embossed and classic engraving, all in very good condition and beautiful patina.

This beautiful piece of Ottoman art is from the 19th century.

Our model presents under the hemmed edge, a frieze, which seems to be "cabbage leaf", (see photo) decoration that we find on greenery, Flemish tapestries of the 16th and 17th century, showing that European decorations can be found on oriental objects and vice versa.

This frieze is followed by a decoration of six rondos or rosettes of beautiful thuluth calligraphy, separated by smaller rosettes and stylized flowers in mandorlas.

the entire rest of the body covered with epigraphic friezes, interlacing plants and flowers.

This style of decor is close to those that we encounter on all of the pieces, from the regions of the Middle East, often former regions of the Ottoman Empire, regions which welcomed a population of Armenian origin very gifted in the work of the brassware.

These containers, abundantly decorated with marvelous engravings, were the joy and pride of the collections of the princes of that time and the happiness of collectors of Islamic art today.

Thuluth or Tholoth, appears in the 7th century, it is a static and monumental writing, mainly used for decorative purposes in manuscripts and inscriptions. It was also used for copying the Korans, especially for chapter heads and colophons.

It is considered the most important ornamental writing. Attention object of great beauty and in superb condition.

These objects are present in the major collections of Islamic art museums throughout the world.

- Museo Nazionale del Bargello, Florence, Italy.

- Museum für Islamic Kunst, Staatliche Museum zu Berlin, Berlin, Germany.
