continued to receive recognition, such as the dedication by Barcelona City Hall in 1997 of a square right next to where his house stood, Carrer Jules Verne, or the various events organized at Barcelona, Sant Feliu de Guixols and Girona in 2001 to mark the centenary of his birth. In 1924 he met the painter Joaquin Mir and from then on spent time at his home in Vilanova i la Geltrú. In 1933 he went for the first time to Sant Feliu de Guixols, where he met Isabel Girbau, whom he married on June 17, 1936, with Joaquim Mir as his witness. After the civil war, in 1940, he began exhibiting regularly at the Sala Parés in Barcelona, where he regularly exhibited his works every two years until 1988, the date of his last exhibition. He has also organized numerous exhibitions in Madrid, Bilbao, Paris and other cities. In 1981 he joined the Sant Jordi Royal Academy of Fine Arts. He died in Barcelona in 1991 and is buried in Sant Feliu de Guíxols.
