Description

Kilim senneh from Iranian Kurdistan, wool, circa 1950. Very good condition. The breakpoints have been restored in our workshop.

The city of Sanandaj, formerly called Senneh, is located in Iranian Kurdistan. The 'senneh' knotted-stitch rugs are famous but the 'senneh' kilims are also very popular with lovers of authentic rugs. The work is, in fact, very refined both in the production technique and in the designs which have been perpetuated over the centuries. The work is, in fact, very refined both in the production technique and in the designs which have been perpetuated over the centuries. Senneh kilims or knotted sennehs are most often made with the mahi pattern (diamond-shaped fish pattern), like this one. This is a zaronim format
