Description

This Staffordshire figure group represents 'Uncle Tom' and 'Eva', two characters from the anti-slavery novel Uncle Tom's Cabin by the American author Harriet Beecher Stowe, which was first published in serial form in 1851. The novel focuses on the tale of Uncle Tom, a long-suffering African American slave. Eva is a white girl whom he rescues from drowning then is employed by her family at their plantation.

Uncle Tom's Cabin was the best-selling book of the 19th century and has been credited as a driving force behind America's anti-slavery movement. However it also contributed to the negative stereotyping of black people, particularly in the character of Uncle Tom who passively accepts his fate.
