CANE

Yoruba culture, Nigeria

19th century or earlier

Bronze and iron

H. 148 ; L. 4 ; W. 9.5 cm

A cane whose shaft is composed of twenty superimposed FACES and two anthropomorphic CHARACTERS seated on circular bases. One of them is the pommel: he has a particularly stretched torso, his hands rest on his upper body, his body is dotted with circular scarification marks in relief and he wears a tiered, openwork headdress. An arched protuberance ending in a bearded face forms the base of his seat. The figure in the middle appears to be holding offerings.
