Description

Charming sculpture in white Carrara marble based on the famous infant's head by Jean Joseph Carriès (1855-1894).

the face is adorable and emerges from the marble as if in a corolla, of course it is a piece of clothing but it is reminiscent of the work of certain current photographers who make baby faces emerge from roses or cabbages .

the sculpture is inspired by and is entirely in the spirit of Carriès' infant faces.

the result is superb with a very beautiful old patina.

excellent condition.
