Description

French dresser Louis Philippe late 19th century. The wood is walnut.

This dresser is equipped with five drawers. The fifth drawer is a secret drawer concealed in the cabinet plinth. The drawers are mounted dovetail ensuring perfect strength. The drawers can be opened daily and hold many sometimes heavy objects. They slide perfectly.

The back of the dresser has solid wood panels so very resistant.

The entrances are beautifully chiseled. They are made of brass. Each lock has its own key.

The dresser is perfectly stable. It rests on low feet called clogs that respect the shape of the furniture both front and back.

The top of the dresser is a black stone marble inlaid with white veins. The marble is in perfect
