Description

Lovely bronze group with an inkwell whose lid reveals its glass cup, the pen holder represented by a hollow stump, a pyrogen match holder and the scraper at the back. Double golden and silver patina. A charming subject with this little fisherman with a stick in his hand at the edge of the river holding a fish which he is about to place in his already full basket, a basket which allows the lid of the inkwell to be opened with ease. At the back, the scraper, gorse and reeds form the match holder completed by a rustic barrier. He can act as a bouqueter for very small flowers. Charming ! A very beautiful, meticulously executed carving and an abundance of very realistic details: see the river at the foot of the little fisherman, nicely carved and coated with a silver patina representing the water, the clothing
