Description

A side table crafted from mahogany, a popular hardwood during the Louis Philippe era known for its rich, dark color and fine grain. The tabletop is designed to emulate a turtle shell shape, it's in good conditions overall considering use and age. The overall design of the side table reflects the characteristics of the Louis Philippe style from the 1880s with clean lines, subtle curves, and minimal ornamentation. The most distinctive feature of this side table is its turtle shell-shaped top typical of sicilian table of the period . This involve a carefully crafted curvature that mimics the distinctive look of a turtle shell. The mahogany has a polished finish to enhance its natural beauty and provide durability. Given the craftsmanship of the period, the side table showcases meticulous attention to detail in its
