Description

Quick description
Wonderful and ancient vestige of wooden sculpture, Saint Margaret rising from the Dragon.
Quite difficult to date precisely but work from the beginning of the 18th century or slightly earlier.
Made of oak with original polychromy.
Sublime patina of time, perfectly treated, slightly cleaned, preserved and frozen thanks to a suitable varnish.
The whole thing is still very solid despite appearances, part weighing 9.5 kilos.
Mounted on a solid wood base created to measure in our workshops.
The whole presents wonderfully well.

Dimensions
75cm high; 30cm wide and 16cm deep.
