Description

A very delicate miniature on tissue paper in the style of the Marvar school, one of the prestigious schools of Rajasthan.
Thank you for appreciating the details and precision of the line.
A dancer offers herself to the eyes of Maharana Jagat Singh II, in a rich palace setting and view of his own floating palace. ## Lake Pichola in Udaipur, in the middle, the lake palace, having the appearance of floating on its surface.
Maharana Jagat Singh II once took umbrage at his father's refusal to organize moonlight picnics on the island of Jag Mandir.
"Build your own palace" said his father and that is what he did in 1746, the Jag Niwas, the lake palace. Impeccable condition, margin formerly glued, Miniature dimensions 16 cm x 10.5 cm
