Description

Excellent condition. Damaged sword blade tip.
