Description

Carpet from Iranian Kurdistan (western Iran) kurk wool (fine lamb's wool), cotton warp and weft, circa 1940. Very good condition.

Traditional Bidjar in zaronim format. A central medallion as well as four spandrels stand out from a patinated red background composed of the 'mahi' (diamond) motif. Three borders composed of a stylized floral pattern frame the rug. Strong and durable mat.

Located in Kurdistan, bidjars are held in high esteem, due to their great robustness and resistance to wear. These are rugs appreciated by enthusiasts because of their authenticity and their typically Persian charm. Carpets from Bidjar and surrounding villages are made with the turkbaff
