Animal representation is omnipresent in the work of Jacques Duval Brasseur. He works the technique of instinct, gropes, seeks to tame the materials and engages with them a struggle to make the most of them in order to create original works. He made his first abstract sculptures using various materials such as sheet metal cars. It was also at this time that the artist César, an artist whom Jacques Duval Brasseur did not know, also drew from scrap a fantastic bestiary. This fantastic dimension is common to both artists.

Jean Dive, who noticed and appreciated his creations, allowed Jacques Duval Brasseur, in 1969, to present four large abstract sculptures at the Galerie Maison et Jardin. This is when the success of our artist begins. Many famous collectors will order, one can for example cite Shah of Iran who acquired one of his most beautiful pieces or the actor David Niven.
