Kuba motif features four right-angled medallions and cruciform decorations topped with trees of life.

These Karakashly trademarks are accompanied by leaves and hooks.

Numerous "kotchaks", stylized ram horns, show the importance of the sheep in these regions.

Four-tone color combination of orange, purple, camel and ivory makes for a beautiful, bright rug on quality wool-on-wool. This prototypical

Karakashly field is surrounded by typical Caucasian S-hook-shaped borders, secondary triangle-shaped borders resembling goblets that embody the essence of local tribal motifs. Two small braids enclose a line of small S's, alternating orange and ivory, symbolizing God, and the importance of the beliefs of these countries. A line of "Medahils" in ivory shades on camel, arrowheads, encloses this abundantly decorated piece.

A wide sinuous band runs along the border, a symbol of water and eternity.

The fringes, selvages and velvet are in magnificent condition.

Thanks to the superior quality of the wool, their tight knotting, the beauty of the natural colors and their ancestral designs, the Caucasians take their place among the best tribal rugs. I invite you to look at our Proantic gallery where we offer many semi-antique rugs and old rugs;

This rug has been professionally and eco-friendly cleaned.
