Description

1960 ROSEWOOD COFFEE TABLE POUL CADOVIOUS. The Danish designer and manufacturer Poul Cadovius was born in 1911 in Copenhagen in the Frederiksberg district. Originally, Poul was trained as a saddler and upholsterer, and it was later that he began to become interested in industrial design. In 1945, he founded his own furniture manufacturing company under the name Royal Systems. Shortly after, Poul had the brilliant idea of creating a modular shelving system that maximized floor space and put an end to traditional shelving. With his Royal System modular shelving system (1948), he won the gold medal at the Finland Furniture Fair in 1950, and the silver medal at the XI Triennale di Milano in 1957. This piece will have a profound impact on mid-century design.

Between 1964 and 1967, Poul acquired the well-established manufacturing company France & Søn, known for the industrialization of teak furniture production. He eventually renamed his company Royal Systems to CADO.
