Directoire style fire screen or fireplace screen in mahogany veneer and brass, mounted on 4 bronze casters.

The Screen slides between 2 mahogany uprights in the shape of a fluted column with brass inlay in the grooves.

Each column is topped with a brass capital and has a ring at its base.

The curved shape of the base is also highlighted with inlaid brass plates.

The top of the firewall is made up of a molded strip which allows the screen to slide.

This is decorated with an oriental scene created in petit point tapestry.

A character in the center of the composition takes shelter under a parasol; it is surrounded by exotic vegetation in which a parrot is perched.
