Description

Corner in the South of France, in faux marble and gilted painted wood. The central panel forms a door. The top was previously restored - A plinth is missing. It is a decorative piece of furniture which gives charm to an interior, it must have belonged to the furniture of a chapel, but it does not present any religious element. The gilding and faux marble are original and in good condition with a few chips. Work from the South of France XVIII Delivery at the buyer's expense.
