become a European Cultural Heritage. It has withstood the destructive force of time and managed to establish itself as a standard-bearer of timeless values.

Successes in world exhibitions and prominent personalities have accompanied the Factory's bicentennial history, thus laying the foundation for its worldwide fame. The Porcelain Museum in Herend, Hungary, is visited by about 100,000 people a year. It allows a glimpse into the secrets of porcelain manufacturing creation, displaying with historical fidelity splendid porcelain masterpieces from the past two centuries.
