Description

Large decorative wall panel "birds of paradise" in verre églomisé 1950. The technique of verre églomisé dates back to Antiquity. It consists of fixing a thin sheet of gold or silver under the glass; the drawing is executed with drypoint and is held by a second layer or a glass plate. Very beautiful work of gold leaf which enhances the decor and transforms the space in a spectacular way. The decor is seen upside down and then shines with an inimitable shine given to it by the light reflected by the glass.
