Description

Authentic corner cabinet from the beginning of the 19th century resulting from quality regional work. This piece of furniture with a rounded front has a framed door whose interior is molded and whose front is carved with a scroll of scrolled flowers. This door has a dark panel and its perimeter is applied. It is placed on the right on original iron hinges and also has an original lock with its iron key and entrance. Inside we discover a solid oak shelf adjustable on a rack. The lower part of this small piece of furniture has a moving crosspiece with molding and two snail feet at the ends accompanied by a central foot. The top of this corner has a scalloped border carved with stylized flowers. The rears are made of solid oak crosspieces and panels. A piece of furniture that combines old-world charm and functionality.
