Description

A pair of candle picks in embossed hammered copper And with a brown patina, some lower parts in a dark patina... Some screws are in brass... From JAPAN From the 19th century In good condition, with normal wear, they are in maximum in their juice I just cleaned them... They have their original wooden box (not perfect...!) They have their pliers to extinguish the wick There is a small pot to collect the part of the wick cut... In terms of the way we can clearly see the fact that they were worked manually... Everything is stored and unscrewed... For information the foot and the base the screw thread is upside down by compared to our screw threads...! There are three inscriptions on the box, a signature? Weight...1 kilo 570 (weight without the box...)
