Description

Horsemen and Bedouins walking on a path near a cliff. (panel 32 * 20 cm) Honoré Boze is a French orientalist painter, born in Mauritius on April 19, 1830, and died in Marseille on January 5, 1909 (aged 78).

Grandnephew of the painter Joseph Boze, Honoré Boze was born in Mauritius to a Provencal father and a very beautiful Hindu mother. His father, a ship captain and merchant in Mauritius Island, who would become Orléanist mayor of Martigues and general councilor of Bouches-du-Rhône, forced to leave Provence, took him to Paris where he was able to explore the exhibitions and Living rooms. He developed a passion for the orientalism of Eugène Fromentin's paintings. He then returned to Provence with his father. He then
