Description

Very elegant secretary in rosewood and speckled maple from the CHARLES X period, richly inlaid in light wood with a very delicate floral decoration. This secretary opens with a flap covered in leather, which reveals a very bright speckled maple interior, made up of various drawers, some of which are secret. The lower part opens with two doors revealing a shelf and a drawer. A large drawer is located in the upper part which is topped with Saint Anne gray marble. This very refined piece of furniture, of great elegance, will bring a remarkable shine to all types of interiors.
