Description

Discover this magnificent Anglo-Indian table from the 19th century! This elegant Anglo-Indian table, crafted from exotic woods such as palo santo, purplewood, sandalwood and ivory, is a true masterpiece of the late 19th century. It features exquisite marquetry work simulating a tropical jungle scene, with various trees and herds of elephants moving around. The elephants and trees are finely carved in relief and highlighted with Chinese ink. Around the scene is an ivory floral ribbon, adding a touch of elegance to the entire design. The base, made of marble and brass, was added later and beautifully complements the intricate details of the table top. With dimensions measuring 127 cm in diameter and 76 cm in height, this table is an eye-catcher in any space. The marquetry work is of museum
