Description

Modernist office by Luigi Bartolini. Crafted in teak, this desk is composed of a beautiful teak wood top and a suspended box in the same wood with stylized chrome metal handles. It is based on a black lacquered square tube structure typical of the modernist movement. Like the desks of Pierre Paulin or Pierre Guariche, this desk benefits from a straight and curve-free design giving it a certain elegance. The color contrast between the wood, the small black and the silver cuffs is also a beautiful harmony. It has good working proportions, it is 120 by 75 deep which differentiates it from most 120 desks which are usually 60 deep. There are some minimal signs of use visible in photos. Ideal for teleworking, this Bartolini desk combines working comfort and beautiful aesthetics.
