n-ancien-de-bourges/ All our maps and engravings are accompanied by a certificate of authenticity . De Fer Nicolas 1647 - 1720 Geographer to His Catholic Majesty 1702 and to Monsignor the Dauphin 1690) and geographer to the Royal Children. Nicolas de Fer was son of the print dealer Antoine de Fer. He entered into an apprenticeship at the age of 12 with the engraver Louis Spirinx in May 1659 then worked with his father until the latter's death in June 1673, then with his mother until 1687, the year when she gives him his business (Nov. 8, 1687). Engineer and cartographer, he will employ several engravers who will create his marine maps, the cartography of the conquests of Louis XIV, i.e. more than 600 maps or plans including political, administrative, ecclesiastical, hydrographic, orographic France, as well as various neighboring countries. His significant work will result from the meeting of the maps in the Curious Atlas where the World represented in the general and particular maps of Heaven and Earth.
