Description

Rocking chair in natural wood from the early 20th century. This comfortable seat is based on a pendulum system operating thanks to large springs allowing you to be pleasantly rocked without having the impression of tipping backwards too much. The seat is comfortable without being too firm. Ruby-colored covering fabric with some very discreet traces of wear. Set in good house condition. Note, a similar but older armchair (Napoleon III period) which can form a counterpart to this one is also available on our gallery.
