Born in 1857 in Tuscany in Volterra, after studying at the Academy of Fine Arts in Florence, he opened his workshop in Volterra.

He quickly moved from the status of a unanimously recognized sculptor to that of director of the School of Fine Arts in Volterra. He taught "Silhouette and plasticity" for a long time.

The Tuscan town of Volterra is the region of alabaster.

Many of his works can be found today in museums and private collections around the world.
