Pierre Walter,

Cabinetmaker, probably mastered before 1738.

He worked as a free worker on the Grande Rue du Faubourg-Saint-Antoine towards the middle of the reign of Louis XV.

Married to the daughter of the cabinetmaker CAREL, he took over his workshop after the latter's death.

In 1755, with Jean Baptiste Hédouin, he took over the goods belonging to the estate of his colleague François Vandercruse, known as Lacroix.

On the same date and until 1760, he supplied the cabinetmaker merchant Migeon with game tables of various kinds in satin wood and amaranth.
