Description

Very beautiful series of openwork standing plates decorated with off-center flowers in the spirit of the 18th century and the widow Perrin's factory in Marseille.

although it is probably a 19th century work produced by the Samson factory, this series of plates are very decorative and have an obvious charm.

they rest on bases in the shape of acanthus leaves and are scrolled on the outline with an openwork wing with purple and green decoration.

in the center of the decorations of roses and off-center flowers, finely treated and in bright colors.

presentation plates or small serving dishes reminiscent of the famous Marseille factory.

of course the signature below VP is not good but the fact remains that today the copies and works of the Samson factory are sometimes much more sought after than the models from which they are inspired.

an interesting series offering a beautiful document on the work of Samson.
