Description

Rare and tiny period glassware service from the end of the 18th century. This set includes two teapots of different sizes, 3 cups, 4 saucers and a standing cup. Made from dark red blown glass, these pieces appear brown depending on the lighting provided. Delicately hand-painted silver decorations on the teapots, saucers and cups representing a flower. Probably Italian work, reserved for the decoration of rich doll's houses, and/or for the happiness of pampered children... I present these pieces to you in found condition with a little dust visible in the detailed photos. The photos are taken using macro photography with as much sincerity as possible. Perfect condition of the whole. Note: a technical feat considering the size! Height of the large teapot with the lid (removable!): 3 cm Diameter of a
