Description

Louis XVI Style chiseled bronze clock, the white enameled dial with Roman numerals protected by a curved beveled glass on a hinge on the front, by a flat beveled glass on a hinge on the back.

The movement is arranged in a fluted oval column framed by two architectural scrolls decorated with stylized acanthus leaves, topped with a twist of laurel leaves and surmounted by a covered basin on a pedestal with handles formed of heads of ram. connected by a torus garland of oak leaves tied in its center.

The column rests on an oval base with a central decoration of a medallion with a pair of birds framed by garlands of falling flowers.

The base rests on four spinning top legs.
