Description

Beautiful versatile reading table, with a single plank blond mahogany top, accompanied by end caps to prevent deformation. A removable wooden retaining element can be removed and positioned opposite the top. Below, an iron element whose side part is perforated allows the top to be tilted with a butterfly screw to lock it in the desired position. This table is also adjustable in height using a notched wooden element allowing the top to be positioned at the desired height. A square notched element slides in a turned barrel, with flanges, whose base is also square. The latter rests on a base reminiscent of the shape of a lute. The latter rests on three turned legs with recessed interior casters allowing easy movement of the furniture. The lower part (column and base) is in blond cherry and the top
