Description

"Iris" Vase - This vase is one of the 29 vegetal ceramics showcased in the exhibition bearing the dual signature of Keller and Guérin Lunéville and Bussière.
Like the others, it is part of a collection dominated by the organic plasticity of plant forms that exhibit a matte and glossy glass-like texture, a craftsmanship that has since been lost.
Ernest Bussière was a sculptor and worked on significant monuments in several cities. This ceramic work represents a departure from his usual sculptural endeavors.
These pieces are exhibited in numerous museums such as:
The Museum of the School of Nancy
The Lunéville Museum
The Ariana Museum in Geneva, etc.
